Shrimp imports from China, Vietnam must pay penalty tariffs

AP Economics Writer WASHINGTON (AP)-The Bush administration has upheld the imposition of penalty tariffs on shrimp imports from China and Vietnam, handing a victory to beleaguered U.S. shrimp and canned warm-water producers. The action affirmed with slight modifications a preliminary ruling by the Commerce Department's International Trade Administration last summer. The penalty tariffs have been collected by border agents since July.

The department is scheduled to make a final decision on shrimp imports from four other countries, Brazil, Ecuador. India

Thailand, in late December. Together, the six countries provide about 75 percent of the shrimp that Americans eat. U.S. food distributors contend that the penalty tariffs will drive up shrimp prices at restaurants and grocery stores.

In the decision, the government set duties on Chinese exports of frozen shrimp at levels ranging from 27.9 percent to 112.8 percent. Vietnamese shrimp, exports will be hit with duties ranging from 4.1 percent to 25.8 percent.

The tariffs were imposed because a government investigation found the shrimp from those nations was being sold in the U.S. market at unfairly low prices, a practice known as dumping.

and we thank the Department of Commerce for offsetting this illegal practice and leveling the playing field for U.S. shrimp fishermen, farmers, processors and all fairly trading countries," said Eddie Gordon, president of the Southern Shrimp Alliance.

But the Shrimp Task Trade Action Coalition and the American Seafood Distributors Association, complained that the penalty tariffs will mean higher prices for consumers and will not help the domestic industry.

Thousands of familyowned restaurants and businesses will now be forced to pay these duties," said Wally Stevens, chairman of the Shrimp Task Force and president of the seafood distributor Slade Gorton Co. Even conservative Rep. John Reeves (R-Jackson), normally a reliable ally of Barbour proposals, fumed to Ways and Means: "When did we stop issuing industrial revenue bonds and start making outright grants?"
In the end, by standing its ground and not knuckling under to Barbour's insistence on a Northup Grumman-only special session bond agenda, the House after 11 days won its point and a $456 million package finally emerged.

Universities and junior colleges benefited, and even $30 million was inserted as a catch-up toward the state,s $550 million commitment under the Ayers case to upgrade facilities at historically-black institutions.

Born in Springhill, Nova Scotia in June of 1945 to Dr. Carson and Marion Murray, Anne was the only daughter amongst five sons. Sports and music were family pastimes so it was no surprise when Anne attended the University Brunswick and graduated in 1966 with a degree in Physical Education.

In 1968 she headed to Toronto to record her first album What About Me. One. vear later, she released the follow-up album, This Way Is My Way. That album included "Snowbird" and in 1970 Anne Murray would become the first Canadian solo female artist to ever receive an American Gold award.
